NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Appletons' Journal for this week contains in a supplementary sheet five chapters of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood." The novel appears in monthly parts in London, and each part will be immediately reprinted in supplements to the Journal and furnished gratis to purchasers of that periodical.

Robert Carter & Brothers have published The Close of the Ministry, by the Rev. WILLIAM HANKA, D. D. This is the third of the series of six volumes which embrace Dr. Hanna's popular Life of Christ, and it car ries the sacred parrative from the Transfiguration to the aneinting at Bethany. Among the subjects treated in it are the parables of the Good Shepherd and the Good Samaritan, the Lord's Prayer, the raising of Lazarus, and the question of Divorce.

The Christian Rule of Marriage, by HOWARD MALCOM (J. B. Lippincott & Co.), is a warning addressed to "professing Christians" that they are not at liberty to contract marriage with unbelievers,-the word unbeng used in its narrower and, so to speak, technical onse. Mr. Malcom holds that such marriages are conrary to the spirit of the Old and the New Law; that are seldom or never happy; and that the apostacy of the believer, rather than the conversion of the unbe-liever, is apt to be their result.—The same publishers have also issued a fifth and enlarged edition of an essay by Mr. Malcom on The Extent and Efficacy of the Atonement. It was first written as a discourse before the Bos-ton Baptist Association in 15.72, and has long been out of

Harper & Brothers have just published the third volume of the Cyclopadia of Biblical, Theological and Ecclesiastical Literature, prepared by the late Dr. McCLINTOCK and Dr. James STRONG. It includes the ers E. F. and G. and three or perhaps four volumes nore will be needed to complete the work. A note from ublishers conveys the gratifying assurance that the death of Dr. McClintock will not delay the issue of the remaining portions. Nearly the whole of the manucript is already prepared, and the separate articles have only to be revised and the results of fresh researches and discoveries added as the sheets are ent to press. Under the care of Dr. Strong and efficient assistants this work will no doubt be thoroughly performed. The Cyclopædia is one of most comprehensive and scholarly dictionaries of Biblical and religious literature ever published. It includes all the most valuable portions of the Cyclopredias of Smith and Kitto, but also takes in many classes of subjects, in the departments of biography, history, the natural sciences, modern geography, &c., which were beyond the range of those well-known

SPRING.

By the Literary Critic of a certain Weekly Paper H'm! Spring! 'Tis popular, we 've heard, And must be noticed, therefore : Not that a flower, a brook, or bird, Is what we greatly care for.

The trees are budding-immature! Yet them, no doubt, admire some : One leaf comes like the other, sure, And, on the whole, it's tiresome.

What kind of bird is this we hear i The song is rather mystic; Some notes, we grant, are smooth and clear, But cannot say-artistic.

We're not quite sure we wholly like Those ferns that wave and spread so Tis safe to doubt the things that strike The eye at once-we've said so.

An odor ! H'm !-it might be worse ; There must be violets nigh us. Quite passable! (For Shakespeare's verse This time, will justify us!)

A native plant! we don't know what; Some, now, would call it pleasant; But, really, we would rather not Commit ourselves, at present.

'Tis vulgar to admire, you know, And Spring so common-place is; Why are those boys allowed to show Such pleasure on their faces !

School-misses, yonder, arm in arm! They find in sun and flowers a charm, Ent further time we will not waste.

Neglecting our position; To scourge the stupid public taste Is our peculiar mission.

And if men saw us, and should deem (Those ignorant human brothers!) That we the Spring enjoyed, we'd seem No better than the others!

TUESDAY, April 12-P. M. Gold and foreign exchange are weaker today, as there was no demand for either sufficient to maintain the rates of yesterday. It is out of the question to create a demand for "exchange" by putting it up, or to hold gold up at 114½ upon a mere speculative basis. The operations of the 25th of September, 1869, are not for gotten; and then the Secretary of the Treasury has some millions of surplus gold on hand, and the amount is in-creasing every day; and if "speculators" should attempt to force gold up to a figure that would disturb the siness of the country and values, he would unquestion ably "come down" upon them, as it would be his duty

Gold operators have offered 7 per cent to-day for money to carry their purchases of yesterday. We may be mis-taken, but we think they will find gold an expensive thing to carry at 1145, or even 113, as the truth is there is no demand for it. The total increase of our cotton ex port for the year thus far is 539,000 bales, worth about $54,000,000, and this is gone to help pay for our foreign debt. Messrs. W. P. Wright & Co., in their Circular of the 11th inst., say:

"It will be noticed that France and other ports are taking more largely of cotton, and the total for the season must exceed general expectation. It appears that France and the Continent are steadily increasing in cotton manufactures, and are likely to be much larger customers for our future crops than even before the war. The following is a statement of the movement in cotton from the list of September to the 7th of April:

f April: 1870. 1869. 1868. 1867. Receipts at the ports. 2.457,000 1.957,000 2.022,000 1.640,000 Total exports. 1.643,000 1.074,000 1.262,000 1.122,000 1.202 As to the crop of this year, they state:

"The weather at the South has lately become warmer, and planting is progressing more rapidly and more favorably. So far we hear of no complaints. A large area will be put under cultivation, and the result will depend apon the state of the weather during the growing and picking season."
